acrimony and hyperpartisanship have seeped into every part of the political process congress is deadlocked and its approval ratings are at record lows america s two main political parties have given up their traditions of compromise endangering our very system of constitutional democracy and one of these parties has taken on the role of insurgent outlier the republicans have become ideologically extreme scornful of compromise and ardently opposed to the established social and economic policy regime in it s even worse than it looks congressional scholars thomas mann and norman ornstein identify two overriding problems that have led congress and the united states to the brink of institutional collapse the first is the serious mismatch between our political parties which have become as vehemently adversarial as parliamentary parties and a governing system that unlike a parliamentary democracy makes it extremely difficult for majorities to act second while both parties participate in tribal warfare both sides are not equally culpable the political system faces what the authors call asymmetric polarization with the republican party implacably refusing to allow anything that might help the democrats politically no matter the cost with dysfunction rooted in long term political trends a coarsened political culture and a new partisan media the authors conclude that there is no silver bullet reform that can solve everything but they offer a panoply of useful ideas and reforms endorsing some solutions like greater public participation and institutional restructuring of the house and senate while debunking others like independent or third party candidates above all they call on the media as well as the public at large to focus on the true causes of dysfunction rather than just throwing the bums out every election cycle until voters learn to act strategically to reward problem solving and punish obstruction american democracy will remain in serious danger the suicidal proclivity of our time writes the acclaimed philosopher j budziszewski is to deny the obvious our hearts are riddled with desires that oppose their deepest longings because we demand to have happiness on terms that make happiness impossible why and what can we do about it budziszewski addresses these vital questions in his brilliantly persuasive new book the line through the heart the answers can be discovered in an exploration of natural law a venture that with budziszewski as our expert guide takes us through politics religion ethics law philosophy and more natural law the author states plainly but provocatively is a fact about human beings as surely as we have hands and feet we have the foundational principles of good and evil woven into the fabric of our minds from this elemental fact emerges a natural law theory that unfolds as part of a careful study of the human person thus budziszewski shows natural law forms a common ground for humanity but this common ground is slippery while natural law is truly an observable part of human nature human beings are hell bent quite literally on ignoring it the mere mention of the obligations imposed on man by his nature will send him into a rage in this sense the line through the heart explores natural law as not simply a fact and a theory but also a sign of contradiction while investigating the natural law and its implications budziszewski boldly confronts and offers a newly integrated view of a wide range of contemporary issues including abortion evolution euthanasia capital punishment the courts and the ersatz state religion being built in the name of religious toleration written in budziszewski s usual crystalline style the line through the heart makes clear that natural law is a matter of concern not merely to scholars it touches how each of us lives and how all of us live together his profoundly important examination of this subject helps us make sense of why habits that run against our nature have become second nature and why our world seems to be going mad
